Summer life on campus, though it changes, does not stop. Students have packed their suitcases and headed for various parts of the country. But the memories of their faces and activities are still alive. And taking their place are the new students who show their faces on applications. Former students write notes, ask for transcripts, order yearbooks, apply for another year or give changes of address. Keeping in touch makes the memories live longer.

The staff is scattered over the country -- over the world -- too. Carol Gingerich is on a European tour. Arie Troyer is working in Montana for the summer. A few remain on campus, carrying the workload and preparing for the fall term. Yvonne Schlabach works in the office four days a week. Delores Yoder, who is now in the cashier's office, spends several days a week. Susan Weber comes in for a few hours at a time to catch up with applications. LeRoy Sommers manages to slip in some days. And Ivan and Loretta Wagler are constant in laboring to keep the campus in good condition.

Summer months on campus are certainly more quiet than the winter ones—except for weddings and reunions! But the seeds for another good year are being quietly sown. Applications are a bit ahead of last year at the same time. Six international students (not counting Canadian students) plan to be on campus. The Admissions Committee initials files...the School Board and Administrative Council meet...the seeds are being sown. The fall will see sprouts. And hopefully by next May the harvest will be plentiful!
